PETRA ALLENDE (1920-2002)

Biographical Note:

Petra Allende was an important community activist and an East Harlem resident for over 35 years. Often referred to as “La Alcaldesa del Barrio,” (the Mayor of El Barrio) she was a well known advocate for senior citizens rights.

One of five children, Allende was born in San Juan, Puerto Rico on June 29, 1920 to Justo Allende and Alejandrina Rosario. Despite her family’s poverty, Allende was able to complete an eighth grade education, an important accomplishment for a female at that time. Although she would have liked to continue her studies, it was not economically feasible. She married young at the age of sixteen. Years later she encountered difficulties in her marriage and sought help and advice from her older brother who had migrated to New York.

In 1949, Allende left Puerto Rico and joined her brother in New York. Like many Puerto Ricans before her, she came to live in El Barrio in search of a better life for herself and her children. Upon arrival; she immediately began looking for a job and succeeded in finding work at a clothing factory. Some time later she took a job in a printing shop where she worked for sixteen years.

Members of Hijos de Borinquen No. 9 of the Gran Orden Fraternal de Odfelos Latinos

In 1966 she accepted a job with the city as a Senior Human Resources Specialist at the Manpower Career Development Agency.

Petra Allende’s own life experience of confronting the day to day hardships of the working poor as a single mother transformed her into an advocate for change. She

Nota biográfica:

Petra Allende fue defensora de los derechos para ciudadanos envejecientes, activista comunitaria y residente del Este de Harlem “El Barrio”, por más de treinta y cinco años. También era conocida como “la Alcaldesa del Barrio”.

Allende nació en San Juan, Puerto Rico, el 29 de junio de 1920. Fue una de cinco hijos de Justo Allende y Alejandrina Rosario. A pesar de la pobreza de su familia, Petra completo su educación hasta octavo grado, un logro muy importante para la mujer en esos tiempos. Aunque Allende quería continuar sus estudios no pudo debido a su precaria situación económica. Petra se casó a la temprana edad de dieciséis años; pero años más tarde encontró muchas dificultades en su matrimonio y buscó apoyo en su hermano mayor, quien había migrado a Nueva York.

En 1949 Allende dejó Puerto Rico al igual que muchos puertorriqueños antes que ella y estableció residencia en “el Barrio”, en busca de una mejor vida para ella y sus hijos. Al llegar, encontró su primer empleo en una fábrica de ropa. Tiempo después acepto trabajar en una imprenta donde estuvo empleada por 16 años.

Petra aceptó una posición en Manpower Career Development Agency, como “Senior Human Resources Specialist”, en 1966.

Las experiencias de Allende enfrentando diariamente las privaciones de los pobres y como madre soltera, la motivaron a transformarse en defensora de los derechos y agente de cambio en su comunidad. Se convirtió en una eficaz activista comunitaria, organizando clases de inglés, oponiéndose a los exámenes de literacia como requisito para poder votar y luchando por los derechos de los ancianos.

La pasión de Petra Allende fue defender a su comunidad. Ella inició su activismo a través de la Puerto Rican Leadership Alliance y The Puerto Rican Community Development Project. Luego en 1960, se unió a José R. Erazo, (Líder del Distrito de su área) para impugnar los exámenes de literacia que excluían a muchos de los ciudadanos del proceso electoral.

En los años de la década del 1970 Allende aprendió a cabildear a los legisladores de Albany y Washington, became an ardent community activist, organizing English classes, opposing literacy tests which were required in order to vote and fighting for the rights of the elderly.

Allende got her start as an activist through the Puerto Rican Leadership Alliance and the Puerto Rican Community Development Project. In 1960 she joined the efforts of Jose R. Erazo, the District Leader of her area to combat the literacy exams that excluded many citizens from the electoral process. Allende's involvement in community affairs became a life-long passion.

In the 1970s she learned to lobby Albany and Washington legislators with a group of African-American women, the Manhattan Political Caucus. Working with other women of color led her to understand the importance of "cooperation across communities." Lobbying for senior citizens rights became one of her main activities beginning in the 1980s and until her death in 2002. As Legislative Coordinator of the Hispanic Senior Action Council, an affiliate of the Institute for the Puerto Rican/ Hispanic Elderly, she lobbied Congress against Medicare and Medicaid cuts and for other issues affecting the well-being of the elderly.

In addition to working as a lobbyist, she volunteered with various organizations such as the Gaylord Senior Citizens Center participating in the health education of seniors and creating cultural programs.

It is evident from the collection that Petra Allende focused on issues affecting seniors, especially healthcare. For example, she was a firm advocate of universal health care. "The condition and status of the Puerto Rican/ Hispanic senior in New York City," were at the heart of her activism. In her talks she used her own life of struggle to reflect on the situation of poor seniors and to advocate for changes in policies adversely affecting them.

Allende was often invited to be on the Board of Directors of organizations. She accepted membership in those where she felt she could be most effective. Among these were Iris House (1992-1994), Bonifacio Cora Texidor Housing Development Fund Corporation (1999-2002) and the East Harlem Community Development Plan (1977-1981). She also became an active member of various grassroots organizations such como parte de la organización de mujeres afro-americanas, "Manhattan Political Caucus". Esta experiencia la ayudó a entender la importancia de que todas las comunidades cooperen entre si. Desde 1980 hasta su muerte en el año 2002, ella se dedicó a cabildear por los derechos de los ciudadanos mayores con gran ahínco. Además, como Coordinadora Legislativa del Hispanic Senior Action Council" y afiliada del "Institute for the Puerto Rican/ Hispanic Elderly", combatió contra los recortes en los programas de salud, Medicaid, Medicare y por otros problemas que afectaban el bienestar de los ancianos.

Aparte de trabajar como cabildera, fue voluntaria en varias organizaciones como "Gaylord Senior Citizens Center". Participó en programas educacionales sobre la salud de los ancianos y en la creación de actividades culturales.

En los documentos de la colección, es evidente que Petra Allende era una oradora y presentadora muy persuasiva. Sus presentaciones y testimonios se enfocaban en problemas que afectaban a los envejecientes, en especial los relacionados a los cuidados de la salud. Ella fue defensora del cuidado universal de la salud, "las condiciones de los ancianos puertorriqueños e hispanos en la ciudad de Nueva York" era lo más importante en su activismo. En sus discursos, Allende hablaba de su propia lucha en la vida como ejemplo de la situación de los ancianos pobres y abogaba por los cambios en las pólizas que los afectaban.

Con frecuencia, Allende fue invitada a participar en la junta directiva de organizaciones y ella aceptó aquellas en las que creía podía ser más efectiva, entre estas: "Iris House" (1992-1994), "Bonifacio Cora Texidor Housing Development Fund Corporation" (1999-2002) y "The East Harlem Community Development Plan" (1977-1981). También se convirtió en miembro activo de varias organizaciones locales como: "El Barrio Low and Moderate Income Rehabilitation Fund, Inc.". En esta Petra, sirvió como presidente, promoviendo y apoyando la construcción, rehabilitación y mejoras en las viviendas de bajo ingreso en el Este de Harlem.

Allende también dedicó su energía a la "Chamber of Ruth #9 Hijas de Borinquen, una logia de la Gran Orden Fraternal de Odfelos Latinos, una rama de "Independent Order of Oddfellows". Esta era una sororidad a través de la cual ella podía expresar sus otras inquietudes culturales y sociales.

as El Barrio Low and Moderate Income Rehabilitation Fund, Inc. Allende played a vital role as President and Chair of this organization promoting and supporting the construction, rehabilitation and upgrading of low income housing in East Harlem.

Along side her involvement with these and other civic organizations, Allende was deeply committed to the Chamber of Ruth #9 (Hijas de Borinquen), a lodge of the Gran Orden Fraternal de Odfelos Latinos, a branch of the Independent Order of Oddfellows. This was a “sisterhood” of women which provided both a cultural and social outlet for her.

Petra Allende was nicknamed “La Alcaldesa del Barrio” for her visibility in the East Harlem community and her lifelong dedication to improving the lives of others. She was recognized numerous times for her community service, leadership and commitment. Among the awards she received were the New York City Council’s, “Woman of Achievement Pacesetter Award (2001),” New York State Certificate of Merit (1998) and the National Silver Haired Congress, Certificate of Appreciation (1998).

Petra Allende was a formidable organizer and activist. She died on April 1, 2002 at the age of 81. This collection provides insight into the life of one of East Harlem’s most dynamic leaders and documents the history of diverse East Harlem and Puerto Rican organizations.

A Petra Allende la apodaron “La Alcaldesa del Barrio”, por su visibilidad en la comunidad del Este de Harlem, y su dedicación por mejorar la vida de los residentes de esta comunidad.
